MARLINTON, POCAHONTAS COUNTY WEST VIRGINIA, AUGUST 24, 1922

$1.00 A YEARIN ADVANCE

THE COUNTY FAIR

The County Fair is in full swing and it is a success from every standpoint. It started off strong with an attendance of 3800 on the first day, and the automobiles were past connt ing. It was a fulfillment of the ancient prophesy: "With the fifth wheel of the charlot, shall they come." The fifth wheel is the one that is slung on the side.

In writing about the Fair at this stage of the proceedings, a condition is found such as bothered the special correspondent on the occasion of, a sudden happening in a distant town. The Associated Press did not have a representative there and they wired for an account from some local scribe and all they got from him was: "All is confusion, cannot write ;anything"

The old Levi Gay farm has been transformed into a beautiful park. with a green mountain on one side of a plain as level as a floor, and a clear places: beautiful river on the other. Good barn for sheep and hogs stand on the river bank, and both are full of the finest finished stock you ever saw.

Next week we hope to do better with a write up.

The first day was given over to the home coming on the occasion of the Centennial of the County. It was planned to have three distinguished sons of the county speak to the people. Of the three, Judge McClintic was not able to be present owing to his absence in Canada. Judge Moore of New York, came. He has recentsuffered a stroke of some kind and he was not able to stand while speaking, and delivered his address from an arm chair. But he spoke with winged words. Hisspeech was a patriotic one and dealt with liberty under the law. His greeting to the county on his appearance was very affecting. and the burden of this theme was that the more he thought of Pocahontas county.

Rev. Dr. H. W. McLaughlin spoke of the men who had left their impress upon the county, and it was a rare upon the county, and it was a rare and beautiful tribute to the mighty ed by several thousand dollars. This dead. He is a gifted orator and a deep and sincere man.

The art of the speakers, the charm the county seat has been put to the test and not found wanting.

The bullbat nests rather late in the season, but the whippoor will nest immediately upon its arrival from the south. The bullbat is solitary.
